MEDICAL-SURGICAL NURSING

In morning rounds there is an opportunity to bring the medical team up to date on the condition of each patient.

"I need all this?"

Vital signs are an important part of patient care.

Clinical conference is an important learning experience for freshman and junior students.

"How does that feel?" Safety and comfort are important in positioning a patient.

Careful adjustment of eye patches aids in the recovery of this patient following eye surgery.

To avoid medication errors we check the patient's wrist band, ask her name, and check the card on the tray before giving the medication.

Teamwork aids good patient care on any unit and isolation is no exception. One student aids another as the instructor checks to be sure there is no break in isolation technique.

Encouraging words are offered as the patient is assisted in his first experience with crutch walking.

Patient teaching is part of the nurse's role, here demonstrated as the patient is assisted with an inhalation therapy treatment.

Under the interested observation of the patient, the flow of the intravenous fluid is frequently checked and regulated.

Port of the nurse intern's role is to assist her personnel with the coordination of patient care through the team conference.

Careful coordination of the doctor's orders with nursing kardex insures the optimum in patient care.

Pouring of medications . . .

Passing medications . . . an important step in the patient's recovery and a major part of any nurse's day.

Night duty and flashlights go hand in hand.

Observing, listening to and working with people in the health center gives us a better understanding of them on an out-patient basis.

Mather and child patiently wait.

Recording of weights is an important part of each patient's visit.

Talking with the out-patient helps us to gain an understanding of some of their needs.

OPERATING ROOM

POSITIVELY
NO SMOKING

OPERATING ROOM
NO ADMITTANCE
UNLESS IN OPERATING SCRUB CLOTHES

ALL PERSONNEL
USE SHOE BATH AND TEST
CONDUCTIVITY OF SHOES DAILY
BEFORE ENTERING OPERATING ROOM

SURGICAL ASSISTANT
ASSIGNMENT SCHEDULE

Fundamental training teaches us the proper sterile technique of gowning and gloving.

The scrub nurse is assisted by the circulating nurse in obtaining extra supplies.

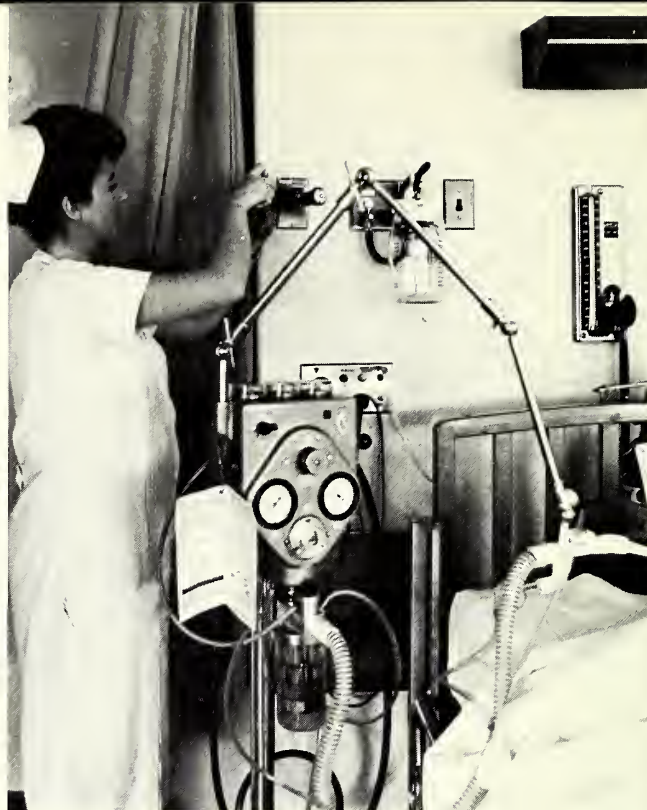

Under the careful observation of Miss Weide, we learn to set up a back table and Mayo stand.

By observing, we learn the technique of assisting a doctor gown and glove.

The omphitheater provides an opportunity for all students to observe cardiovascular surgery.

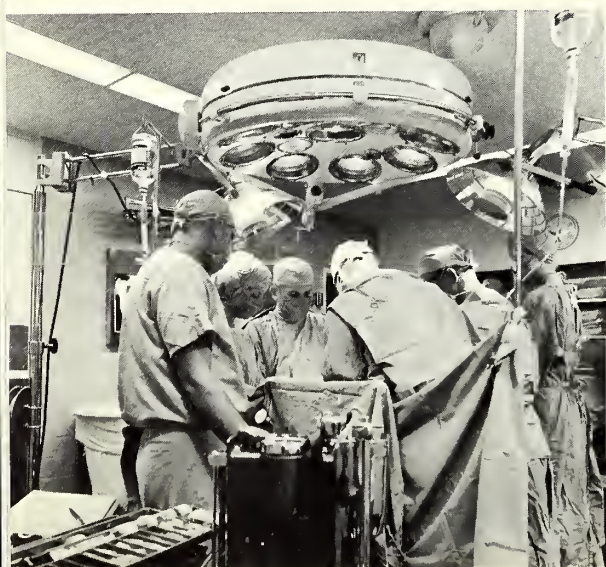

First stop after surgery—Post Anesthesia Recovery Room.

Close observation of surgery teaches us many things.

Intensive Therapy offers an opportunity for specialized intensive nursing care to immediate post operative patients.

Nurse, doctor, and anesthesiologist work together for successful surgery.

O B S T E T R I C S

"Hi Dad, I'm in the crib by the window."

"I may be little,
but I'm mighty!"

"It's good that I'm not shy."

A proud father's first close glance.

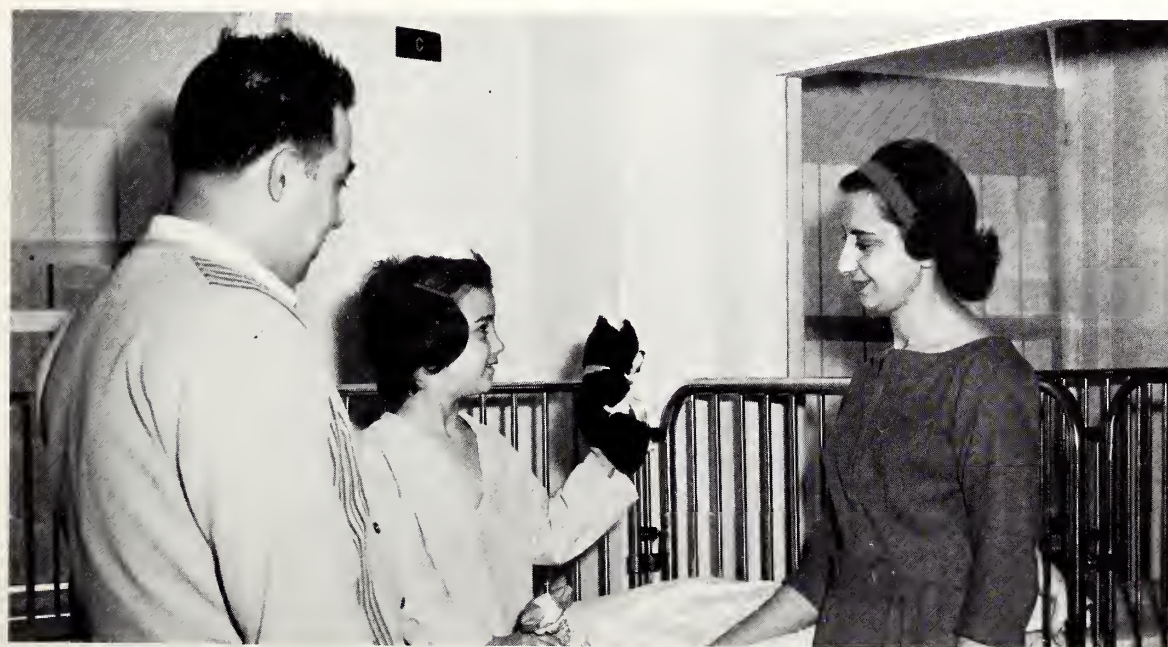

"I'm getting dressed to go home."

PEDIATRICS

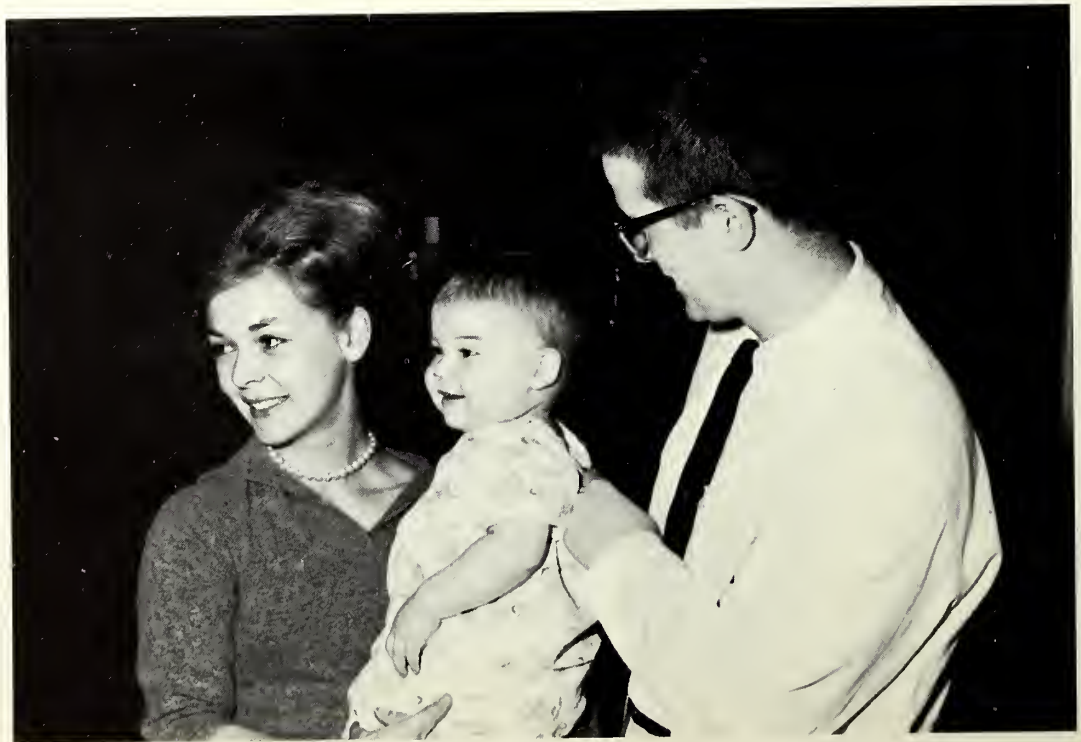

The formalities of admission—

These new toys almost make the hospital worthwhile.

Isolation—

All this ottention is wonderful !

PSYCHIATRY

Someone patiently listens.

Quiet time needed—just to think alone.

Feelings can be expressed in many ways.

RESIDENCE

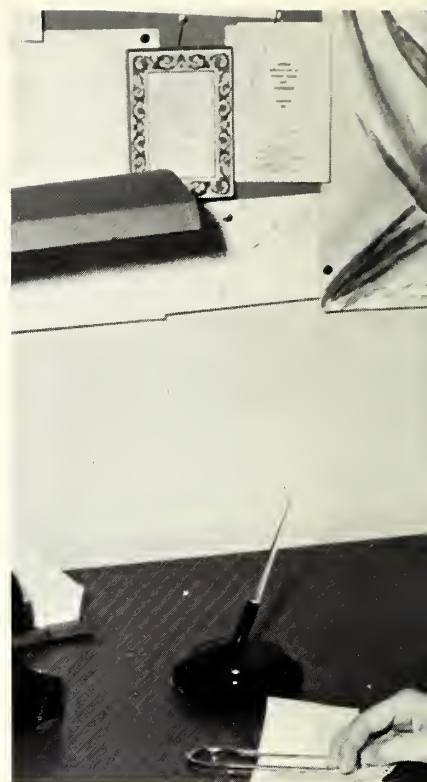

In the second floor infirmary Miss Fry and Mrs. Narris minister to the "sickly ones" per Dr. Kassriel's orders.

Third Floor Library—Fiction, records and catching up on sociology and psychology readings.

Mrs. Cole (above left), Mrs. Patton, Mrs. Hayes (below left) and Mrs. Mahan preside at the main desk. Not pictured: Mrs. Donahue and Mrs. Mueller.

Ever wonder how many hours men spend waiting in the lobby?

Mrs. McCouley, Director of Residence

Daily exercise in patience.

Exit from Sociology Class.

Undoubtedly, Mrs. Grossmeyer in the School Pontry is indispensable—especially during finals and Variety Show practices.

Many of our leisure hours are spent enjoying the floor lounges, redecorated by the Woman's Board.

Many of the nurse interns enjoy apartment living in one of the eleven apartments allotted to them.
